CALM SKIN IRRITATION

Expert: Dr. David Colbert
Client: Michelle Williams

Seeing red? The winter-to-spring transition, including temperature change and increased sun exposure, can stress out skin, leading to inflammation and visible redness. Neutralize ruddiness with a cream containing calming lavender and aloe, along with vitamin B to strengthen the skin's outer protective layer, Colbert says. "Upping your SPF protection also helps to keep tone even," he adds.

SMOOTH ROUGH SPOTS

Expert: Tammy Fender
Client: Julianne Moore

Pay extra attention to lips, neck and hands, which can be left dehydrated and chapped following winter's harsh weather. Soothe your parched pucker by applying a lip balm with supermoisturizing plant butters and antioxidant rose hip oil, Fender suggests. Carry a hydrating toning mist with you and spritz spots such as neck and décolletage, cheeks and forehead or any spot that feels dry throughout the day. Slather the backs of hands with a rich cream, especially right after washing, which can sap natural oils.

GET A YOUTHFUL GLOW

Expert: Dr. Rebecca Giles
Client: Téa Leoni

Lighten up! "Harsh scrubs and peels can strip your skin of more than just excess dirt and oil," says Giles. Every morning, wash with a mild exfoliating cleanser containing beta hydroxy acid, which will declog pores and eliminate blackheads. Then, before applying makeup, fill in grooves around your eyes with a primer. "A smooth surface reflects more light, which looks younger," Giles tells Us.
