

Alicia Silverstone's Very Green Beauty Routine

Skin Care

In a perfect world, I'd wash my face first thing. I'm still searching for my favorite cleanser. What's really important to me is feeling that cleanse, and I want it to smell delicious, too. I like an oil-based one from kindredskincareco.com. Another that I like is Goddess Garden Organics Erase the Day. And lately I started playing with the Clarisonic, which I am loving.

I have three toners, and I alternate between them. I love Tammy Fender Roman Chamomile, and I love Garden Apothecary Full Bloom Fog Toning Mist. Josh Rosebrook makes a Hydrating Accelerator that's great, too. When I'm choosing products, they have to be completely natural, vegan and not use chemical ingredients. Then they also have to smell great and work great.

For actual moisturizer, I use oils. Garden Apothecary's Higher Ground facial serum smells like coffee mixed with chocolate. This other oil I like is by Pai — the Rosehip BioRegenerate Oil. I use the Josh Rosebrook Active Infusion Serum, too. He also makes a sunscreen with moisturizer that's really good.
